INTRODUCTION

The work of preparing a Descriptive Catalogue of the Islamic manuscripts in the Government Oriental Manuscripts Library, Madras, was begun in 1927. The descriptive notices of the Hindusthani manuscripts Nos. 1 to 38 were prepared by Mir Mustaq Ahmed and were printed during the Curatorship of my predecessor Mahamahopadhyaya Vidyavacaspati Professor S. Kuppuswami Sastri, M.A., I.E.S. (Retired) in 1931. In G.O. Ms. No. 1012, Education Department, dated 16th May 1935, Professor Syed Abdul Wahab Bukhari, M.A., L.T., M.L.C., Principal, The Jamalia Arabic College, Perambur, Madras, was entrusted with the work of preparing the descriptive notices of the Arabic and Persian manuscripts in the Library. It is a matter for satisfaction that with the hearty co-operation of the Government Press, the printing and publication of the Descriptive Catalogue of the Islamic manuscripts has been pushed through expeditiously within the last few months. Professor Syed Abdul Wahab Bukhari is solely responsible for the descriptive notices of the Arabic and Persian manuscripts in Parts II and III.

Part I contains the descriptive notices of the Hindusthani manuscripts (Nos. 1 to 38), Part II of the Arabic manuscripts (Nos. 39 to 197) and Part III of the Persian manuscripts (Nos. 1 to 536).

Parts IV and V (Nos. 537 to 729) contain the titles of the works acquired during 1937-38. Their descriptive notices will be published in due course as Vol. II of the Islamic Catalogue. I am indebted to Moulvi Muhammad Ismail Khan Sahib, Persian and Urdu Munshi, Presidency College, Madras, for the preparation of the table of contents for Parts IV and V. An Author Index to Parts I, II and III is appended to the Volume.

It has to be pointed out that the system of Transliteration adopted in this catalogue appears just before the descriptive notices begin. This system was already in practice when Professor Bukhari undertook the task of cataloguing the Arabic and Persian manuscripts. Neither Professor Bukhari nor I had the freedom to go behind this system as it had already been adopted with reference to the Hindusthani manuscripts. The imperfections of this system have therefore to be borne in mind by scholars before they begin to use this catalogue.

An Urdu translation of Shaik Fariduddeen Attar's narrative poem called "Qissa-i-jam-jah." It is stated here in that Jesus Christ once found a very old skull on his way and then prayed to God that he might be fully informed about it. By God's decree the skull itself narrated its whole story to Christ. It stated that it was the skull of a most powerful and proud monarch. The experiences after death are very well described and serve as a lesson to the reader. The present copy was transcribed in the year 1244 A.H.

A very interesting narrative poem. A fairy named Gowher fell in love with a mortal named Lal. Lal was a prince and Gowher the princess of the fairyland. After overcoming many difficulties, the lover reached the fairyland and married Gowher.

Beginning :

الہی دے مجھے رنگین بیانی
عطا کر مجھکو یا قوت معانی *
سخن کا لعل دے میری زبان کو
در معنی میں بھر میری دہانکو *
مجھے در کی سخن کا جوہر کر

اس قصہ میں یہ ثابت کیا گیا ہے کہ حقیقی عشق اور
 محبت ایک ایسا جادو ہے جسکا اثر عاشق و معشوق دونوں میں
 کو مثل سیماب تڑپا دیتا ہے اور چین نہیں لیتا۔ لعل ایک
 حسین شہزادہ تھا اور گوہر پرستان کے بادشاہ کی بیٹی تھی۔ دونوں میں
 عشق و محبت کی آگ بھڑکی ہزار ہا آفتوں کے بعد لعل پرستان
 پہنچا اور اپنی معشوقہ سے ملا۔ مراد ہر آئی *

Author, S'ad. * (سعد)

This is a most tragic love story of a dervish who accidentally came across a newly-married young lady, fell in love with her desperately and died of broken heart. The lady also was not insensible to this sublime love. She fell ill, lost her peace of mind, came in search of her lover and to her great grief, learnt the story of his death. Then she went to his grave and prayed before it most solemnly. The grave opened and gave place to her and thus she also disappeared.

The behaviour of the bridegroom, her lawful husband, under these circumstances is most admirably described.

Author, Maulana Muhammad Baqir Agah. * (باقر آگاہ)

Moulana Muhammad Baqir Agah is one of the most prominent old literary men of southern India. He was born in Ellore in 1158. His forefathers had emigrated from Bijapur to this province after its downfall. Nawab Walajah made him the tutor to his son, Nawab Amirulumra, and gave him two hundred rupees a month in addition to jagir that fetched him nearly four thousand rupees a year. He was a good poet with a profound knowledge of Arabic and Persian.

He died in 1220 A.H., at Madras. This masnavi shows author's great command of language and his abilities as a poet. It was begun in 1191 A.H., and completed in 1210.

This copy was transcribed in 1237 A.H., i.e., seventeen years after the author's death.

This book was translated from Arabic by Moulvi Ikram Ali Sahib in 1810 at the request of Captain John William, Esq. The original Arabic book was the joint production of ten learned men of whom Abu
Sulaiman, Abul Hassan and Abu Ahmed are the most renowned.
Some passages have been omitted in the translation and only the chief arguments are given. In this book it is maintained that man is the best of God's creation.

Subject—Ethical teachings in the shape of allegorical stories.

Author—Vajidy (translator).

The original book is in Persian written by Sheikh Fareeduddin Attar, a great Islamic writer. It was translated by Wajidy. The present copy is more than hundred and fifty years old as can be found out by the date of transcription given on the last page of the book. There are thirty two chapters in this book. In this work the birds are represented as speaking.

It is a commentary on the Alfiyyah of Mohammad b. Malik. Discusses in detail everything the author has left untouched in the text. One Ahmed b. Mohammad transcribed it for himself at Aurangabad completing it on the 17th of Safar in the year 1114 A.H. Dispenses completely with the usual conventional Muslim doxology, and goes straight to the subject after quoting nine verses from the text.

Author, Zafar Khan Mirza, Ahsan.

It contains the lyrical poems of Zafar Khan Mirza Ahsan-ullah, with the Takkallus Ahsan. Ashna son of this poet, was one of the Amir's of Jahangir and Shahjahan. There are two opinions concerning his death. Some say that he died before his son Ashna in 1073 A.H., but others say that his death took place after that of his son in 1081 A.H. He began his poetical career in 1032 A.H. This copy is wanting in the beginning and end.

The beginning seems to be a detail preface in prose order and it is badly injured. Ghazals and rubais are all in alphabetical order.

Author, Mirza Muhammad Rida Khizlbash Khan Ummîd.

It is a collection of lyrical poems of Mirza Muhammad, Ridha Khizlbash Khan Ummîd, a native of Hamdan who came to India with Bahadur Shah and died in Delhi in 1155 A.H. Some writers fix his death in 1159 A.H.

Ummîd was a pupil of Mirza Tahir Wahîd and Mir Najât and was a very good poet.

This copy contains mainly ghazals, the arrangement of pages is most chaotic and bewildering. After turning over 150 pages we get the original first page. As the diwan is in alphabetical order (ی to انف) and there are catch words at the end of every folio; the pages can be properly arranged with care. The last two to four pages are wanting. In some places it is badly injured and worm-eaten. Still it is readable.

He had a profound and extensive knowledge of Sufi literature. Besides the diwan he composed several mathnawīs viz:—

(1) محیط اعظم Muhit-i-āzam, a mystical mathnawi interwoven with short tales.

The title is a chronogram for 1078 A.H., when the poem was completed.

(2) طور معرفت Taur-i-marifat, another mystical mathnawi.

(3) طلسم حیرت Tilism-i-hyrat. An allegorical mathnawi composed in 1125 A.H., = 1713 A.D., (according to Sprenger Catal. p. 379).

(4) گلگشت حقیقت A descriptive mathnawi with religious and philosophical reflections.

(5) عرفان Irfān. A mystical poem dealing with love, the lover and the beloved.

Among his prose works بیاض the anthology of Persian poetry, ثعالبات, his letters and چهار عنبر are worth mentioning.

For further details refer Sprenger Catal. p. 119, Bodleian Catal. Nos. 1169 and 1170 and Dr. Etche's India Office Catal. Nos. 1676 to 1686.

Pages, 644. Lines on a page, 15. Language, Persian. Condition, good. Mode of writing, good. Appearance, old.

Subject, poetry.

Extent, incomplete.

Author, Yaminuddîn Abul Hasan Amir Khusrow.

This copy, though old is in a good condition. Some pages both in the beginning and the end are wanting. The last eight pages contain rubā-iyat. Arranged in alphabetical order.

Yaminuddin Abul Hasan Amir Khusrow, one of the greatest musicians and famous Persian poet of India was born at Patyala in A.H., 651=1253 A.D. His father was from Hazarah near Balkh. When Khusrow was hardly seven years his father died leaving him as it happened to the care of his maternal grandfather Imadulmulk who took great care in educating the promising boy. Subsequently at the age of 25 Khusrow settled in Delhi and became a favourite disciple of the celebrated Saint Nizamuddin Auliya.

Khusrow lived to enjoy the favours of fivesuccessive kings of Delhi:—Muizzuddien Kayqubad 1287—1290 A.D.; Jalaluddin Feruz 1290—1295 A.D.; Muhammad Shah 1295—1315. Ghiyasuddîn Tughlaq 1321—1324 (to whom he dedicated the Tughlaqnamah) and Muhammad bin Tughlaq who ascended the throne in 1324 A.D..

While in the court of this last monarch the poet learned the news of the death of Nizamuddîn Auliya, his spiritual guide, renounced the world and after seven month's mourning he followed him to the grave in 725 A.H.=1324 A.D.. He lies buried by the side of his spiritual guide in the beautiful collection of mosques and tombs outside Delhi. Besides his Persian compositions which are said to be ninety-nine in number he produced many Hindi poems and riddles. Daulat-shah says that Khusrow in one of his works himself mentions to have left between four hundred and five hundred thousand verses the important collections being:—

- (1) Tuhfatus Sighar. نجفۃ الصغر *
- (2) Ghurratul Kamal. غمرة الکمال *

Author, Mir Ali Saidi.

This is a very old copy of the diwan of Mir Ali Saidi of Tehran, who came to India from Isfahan in 1654 A.D. (1064 A.H.) during Shah Jahan's reign and died in 1069 A.H. = 1658 A.D. ; 1659.

Abu Talib says that his diwan contains 4,000 verses and that in one instance he received a present of Rs. 5,000 from Jahān Āra Begum, the daughter of Jahangir and on another occasion he received a present of one lakh of rupees for his poems.

The first ten pages contain qasidahs of which the first few pages are wanting. The diwan proper begins from the 11th page. Besides ghazals there are many qitahs.

Beginnings on the 11th page. :—

Author, Mirza Ibrahim Adham.

The diwan of Ibrahim Adham, a Syed of the Safawi family who came to India under Shahjahan. He was skilled in making verses extempore and was in high esteem among the great.

Adham behaved like a mad darwish and was very insolent. Hence, he was put to death or died in prison in 1060. A.H.

This old copy of his diwan contains, qasidahs in praise of the imams, mokhammas and ghazals. The last twenty four pages contain ruba'is.

In some places especially after p. 70 the arrangement of pages is disturbed; some pages are much injured. Still the diwan is in quite a readable condition.

Not dated, apparently very old. Scribe, not mentioned.

Pages, 170. Lines, on a page, 16 to 17. Language, Persian. Condition, injured.
 Mode of writing, fair. Appearance, very old.

Subject, poetry.

Extent, complete.

Author, Zahir Faryabi.

A very old copy of the poetical collections of Zahiruddin Faryabi who besides being a great poet enjoyed the reputation of an eminent philosopher and astronomer of his age. He was called مدر الحکما or the head of the philosophers. As a poet he is ranked with Anwari.

According to Daulatshah and other writers Zahiruddin Faryabi was a native of Faryab in Balkh and a pupil of Rashid Samargandi. He was first a panegyrist to Tujān Shah who ruled in Nishapur (569–581 A.H. = 1173–1185 A.D.) and of Hasnuddaulah Ardshir, the ruler of Mazand-rān (567–602 A.H. = 1171–1205 A.D.). Subsequently when Zahīr rose to distinction he attached himself to the services of the Atabaks of Adarbaijān. He spent his last days in retirement and died at Tabrīz in 598 A.H. = 1201 A.D. He was buried at Surkhāb near the tomb of Khaquani.

For other particulars refer Sprenger Catal. p. 579 Bodliean Catal. pp. 582 to 584 and Bankipore Catal. by Denison Ross p. 46.

This copy does not contain the preface of the compiler; there are chiefly qasidahs all of which are panegyries. There are also a few qitahs and ghazals. Pages though badly injured are still in a readable condition.

Not dated, apparently of the 15th century. Scribe not mentioned.

Author, Shaikh Muhsin Fanî.

The diwan of Shaikh Muhsin Fanî of Kashmir who died in 1081 A.H. Mulla Tahir Ghani, the well known Persian poet of Kashmir was a student of Fani.

Fani was a court poet of Shahjahan and was greatly honoured by the Emperor. But when Sultan Murad Bakhsh conquered Balkh a copy of Muhsin's diwan was found in the library of Nadhr Muhammad Khan the fugitive sovereign of the kingdom which contained panegyrics on him. This detection of duplicity very much enraged Shahjahan who removed him from the court. However the Emperor allowed him a pension.

Fani returned to Kashmir and spent his days in instructing and educating youngmen.

This copy is not properly arranged. The alphabetical order is disturbed. Some pages are wanting at the end.

Not dated, apparently the copy is more than a hundred year sold. Scribe, not mentioned.

Author, Baba Fughani Shīrāzi. بابا فغانی شیرازی *

An old manuscript copy of Baba Fughani's poetical works. Some pages in the beginning as well as at the end are wanting. The last few pages contain his rubaiyat (رباعیات).

Fughani Shirazi was a born poet. His extraordinary genius and ardent zeal for poetry soon established his fame and he surpassed others. As a youth he travelled to Herat and it was here that he became acquainted with the celebrated Jami. His novelty in poetry—introduction of a new and hitherto unknown style—which was indeed a new departure on the right direction made him unpopular with the conservative poets of Khurasan and with these of Sultan Hussain's court. Fughani found that he could not shine in such environments and left for Tabrîz where in the court of Sultan Yaqûb (884—896 A.H.=1479—1490 A.D.) he soon established his fame and earned the coveted title of Baba-i-Shu'ara' بابائی شعر.

Taqi Auhadi in his Urafât says that in one of the battles of Shah Yaqûb Fughani lost his diwan arranged by himself. The existing diwan was the outcome of his subsequent efforts. On the death of the Sultan, his patron, the poet went to Abî-ward and after spending some years there he went to Mashhad to visit the sacred tomb of Imam Ali Musi-Radhâ, the 8th imam of the Shîâs. His object in visiting Mashhad was to make atonement for his sins. Sam Mirza (1517—1576 A.D.) in his Tuhfa-i-Sami says that Fughani was much addicted to wine and that his averice knew no bounds.

It is to be noted that Fughani's new style and his particular mode of expression which differed from those of his predecessors and contemporaries very soon became populour and was proudly imitated for a long time by eminent poets like Wabshi, Nazîri, Urfî Sanâi and others till the time of Mirza Saib who was again a revolutionary in the realm of poetry.

Not dated. There is no mention of the scribe. The manuscript as it is—

DIWAN-I-QASIM ĀNWAR.

Pages, 358. Lines, on a page 17. Language, Persian. Condition, a little injured especially the first few pages. Mode of writing, good. Appearance, old.

Subject, poetry.

Extent, incomplete.

Author, Muinuddin Ali Qasim Anwar.

The diwan of Sayyid Muinuddin Ali Qasim Anwar with the two takhalluses Qasim and Qasimi. He was born in Sarab, a suburb of Tabrîz in 757 A.H. = 1356 A.D., and died at Kharjird near Jam in 837 A.H. = 1433 A.D.

Qasim was a great sufi and performed four times the pilgrimage to Mecca, twice on foot and barefooted. He was first a disciple of Şadrud-din Ardbēli and subsequently joined the school of Awhaduddien Kirmanî and placed himself under the guidance of Şadrud-din Alî Yamanî. His doctrines as a sufi are not considered orthodox, yet he had immense success owing to his winning manners, the depth of his genius and the great austerity of his life. When he resided at Herat in Khurasan the crowd of his disciples was so numerous and enthusiastic that Shahraeh, the ruler of the province afraid of Qasim's power, ordered him to leave the city. He would have defied the royal command had not Baysanqor persuaded him by his friendly advice to leave the city. He proceeded to Balkh and Samarqand but subsequently returned to Herat at the request of the same sovereign who had expelled him.

Qasim besides his diwan left a mathnawi and several sufi treatises in prose. This copy contains mainly ghazals, a few qitahs, and rubais. The first few pages—perhaps not more than four or five—are wanting in the beginning. The diwan is alphabetically arranged. The last few pages are also missing.

Author, Mirza Muhammad Ali Saib.

An incomplete but a very old collection of Sāib's poetical works. Mirza Muhammed Ali Sāib of Isfahan is generally regarded as the greatest of the modern Persian Poets. He was born about 1012 A.H. (1603 A.D.), went at an early age to Kabul where he became the favourite of the Governor Zafar Khan and then came to the Court of Shāhjahān. After a few days' stay in Kashmir he came back to his native country again and was made "King of Poets" by Shah Abbas II (1642-1666 A.D.). He died in the year 1678 A.D. Some of his poems have been translated into German by Tholuck Bluthensammlung. The present copy in the library is very old, and was written during the life time of Saib. The first few pages are missing. The date of transcription is given as 33 A.H. and it is evident that it must be 1033.

MATHNAW-I-JĀM-I-JAM.

Pages 173. Lines on a page, 15. Language, Persian. Condition, badly injured, but still readable. Mode of writing, fair. Appearance, very old.

Subject, Sūfism.

Extent, incomplete. The last few pages are wanting.

Author, Ruknuddīn Auhadī Iṣfahani.

Jami-jam, the mirror of Jamshīd is a mystical mathnawi in imitation of Sanāi's Hadiqa by Shaykh Ruknuddīn Auhadī, an eminent Sufi and a poet. He is very often confounded in most tadhkirahs with his spiritual guide Auhaduddîn Kirmanî (died 697 A.H. = 1297 A.D.), who was also a sufi poet of a high order and is the Author of “مصابح الارواح”

The jam-i-jam was composed in 733 A.H. (1333 A.D.), and is divided into three daurs as described below by the poet (see p. 45 of this copy from the 7th line).

قسمتي راست کردمش بسم دور
 تانیمو شنده بر بنا شد جور*
 دور اول نشاط بخشد و نور
 کند از دیده خواب غفلت دور*
 اندر آید سرت بگفت و بگوي
 عالمي دیگرست نماید روی*
 دویمین دور شیر گیر کند
 در فنون هنر بصیر کند*
 راه یابی باز مائشها
 پرده بر خیزد از نمائشها*
 در سیوم دور چون کنی نوشش
 بنماید نها در پوشش*
 روح را قوت شباب دهد
 سر آزو امل بخواب دهد*

According to Daulatshah, when Jam-i-jam was composed it was so much valued that about four hundred copies were taken from it in one month and people bought and sold them for high prices.

In the prologue the poet praises Sultan Abû Saïd (716-736 A.H.) and his Wazir Ghiyathuddîn Muhammad to whom this mathnawi is dedicated.

This manuscript is much injured and is incomplete as the last few pages are wanting. The first page bears the seal of عبدالوالی خان بهاد Abdul Wali Khan Bahadur.

Not dated, apparently very old. Scribe, not mentioned.

MATHNAW-I-JAMSHEED-O-KHURSHEED.

Pages 61. Lines on a page, 18. Language, Persian. Condition, a little worm-eaten especially the first four pages. Mode of writing, good. Appearance, old.

Subject, a romantic story.

Extent, incomplete, the last few pages are wanting.

Author, Khwajah Jamalud Din Muhammad Salmān of Sāwāh.

This is an interesting love story of the prince of China and the princess of Rûm composed in 763 A.H. = 1362 A.D., by the celebrated Poet Salman of Sawah at the request of Sultan Uwais. The last few pages—perhaps not more than four to six are wanting.

Salman was born in 700 A.H. = 1300 A.D. As a Poet he had the patronage and favour of ilkhani rulers, father and son, Amir Shaykh Hasan Buzurg (1335–1356 A.D.), and his son Shaykh Uwais (1356 to 1374) and died in 778 A.H. = 1376 A.D.

Dr. Rieu and Ethe by a clear mistake say that Salman was born in 690 A.H. = 1291 A.D. Refer for particulars in this connection Ethe India office Lib. Catal. No. 1237 and Bankipore Lib. Catal. by Maulavi Abdul Muqtadir and Dr. Denison Ross. pp 219 to 225.

Salman enjoyed the reputation of one of the best qasidah writers and surpassed his predecessors and contemporaries in sublimity of style and novelty of ideas. The poems he composed in answer to Zahîr-i-Far-yabî, Sanâi Ghaznavi and Kamaluddîn Isfihânî show his learning and abilities as a Poet.

Besides qasidahs and ghazals he left a number of qitahs and ruba'is. He has left one more mathnawi 'Firaqnamah' described in Ethe India Office Lib. Catal. No. 1243.

Not dated, scribe, not mentioned.

Author, Hakim Thana'i. حکیم سنائی

The celebrated Hakim Thana'i of Gazna was a disciple of Shaykh Abu Yūsuf Hamdani. He was one of the greatest of Sufi Poets Jalaluddin Rūmī the acknowledged head of the sufis speaks highly of him as :-

عطار روح بود و سنائی دو چشم او
ما از بگی سنائی و عطار آمدیم *

Thana'i flourished during the reign of Sultan Bahram Shah (reigned 1118-1152 A.D.=512-547 A.H.), to whom Hadiqah is dedicated. He came of a very noble family of gazni noted for piety and learning. It is said that Bahram Shah offered his sister in marriage to the Poet who however declined the honour.

Besides the Hadiqah and a Diwan of about thirty thousand verses Sanai has left the following five mathnawies: Karnama کارنامہ Kunūzalrumūz کنوز الرمز (also called سمر العباد الی المعاد) Tariquttahqiq عقل نامہ Uqlnama عشق نامہ Ishqnama طریق التحقیق. There are conflicting statements regarding the exact date of the Poet's death.

According to Bahram Shah, the then ruling sovereign, Thana'i died on Sunday the 11th of Shaban 525 A.H., the year in which Hadiqah was completed. Jami also supports this statement. Dr. Ethe (Bodl. Lib. Catal. No. 528) maintains that the poet wrote his book طریق التحقیق in 528 A.H. and hence his death should have taken place some time later. Dr. Denison Ross (see the Catal. of Persian and Arabic manuscripts in the volume dealing with Persian poets from Firdausi to Hafizon the page 21) argues that referring to the Poet's diwan it is found that he more than speaks of the death of Amir Muizzî which took place in 542 A.H. (1147 A.D.). Thus it can be concluded safely that Sana'i was alive at that time.

The enigma is still to be solved by the research scholars.

The first page of this manuscript bears seven seals. One of them is that of Shahjahan and four of Mir Muhammad Taqi Shahjahani Khan. The remaining two seals are so defaced that they cannot be deciphered.

Author, Amir Khusraw Dehlavi.

This is an interesting poetical narrative of the love adventures of Khidar Khan (son of Sultan Ala'uddin Muhammad Shah Khilji 1295-1315 A.D.), and Dwalrani the daughter of Rāyknar the rajah of Gujarat. The work is dedicated to Sultan Ala'uddin the father of the hero.

It is sometimes called "عشقيہ" Ishqiah but the title دولرانی خضر خان is more correct as the author himself says.

*خطاب این کتاب عاشقی بهر
دول رانی خضر خان ماند در دهر **

The author, the famous poet Amir Khusrow says in the book that he completed it on the 6th of the Dilqa'd, 715=1315 A.H. It is further stated that the narrative originally consisted of 4,200 verses but after the death of the hero Khidar Khān 119 verses more were added to it. The unwan is beautifully decorated and the pages that are much injured have gold margins.

The first page bears the seal that reads "یا امام حسین" transcribed in 987 A.H. Scribe, Mubarak Yahya al Musavi.

This is the renowned Mathnawî composed by Maulana Nuruddin Muhammad Zuhuri of Tarshîz in Khurāsân dedicated to Burhân Nizam Shâh II of Ahmadnagar who reigned from 1591 to 1595 A.D. (999 to 1003 A.H.).

Zuhuri went in early life to Yazd and thence to Dakhan in 1850 A.D. (988 A.H.). Like Malik Kumi he first settled in Ahmadnagar and afterwards in Bijâpur. He married Malik Kumi's daughter and died in 1616 A.D. (1025. A.H.). He was a great Poet and had a peculiar style of his own. He is much given to exaggerations.

Faydi in his letter written to Emperor Akbar from Ahmadnagar has made special mention of Kumi and Mulla Zahuri as very good poets of Burhanulmulk's Court. Zuhuri does not seem to have been in affluent circumstances. He was leading a contented life.

It was transcribed by one Mirza Muhammad. Date of transcription not mentioned.

Author, Qudratullah Khan Qudrat.

Qudratullah Khan Qudrat's Mathnawi giving a vivid description of Nawwab Azamjah's marriage in a most detailed manner. Some pages in the middle of the manuscript are badly injured. It has decorated unwan and the pages have coloured marginal lines.

Qudratullah Khan Qudrat was a descendant of a most respectable and noble family of Arabs that had settled down in India and whose members were noted for their piety and learning. He was born at Gopamū near Lucknow in 1199 A.H. He emigrated to Madras in 1227 and after a few years rose to prominence in the Court of the Nawwab of Carnatic. He was a good poet and a critic. He left a Diwan and a valuable book Nataijul Afkār نتایج الافکار that was lithographed by the Nawwab at his own cost.

Author, Sayyid Latif Qadiri.

A very interesting descriptive Mathnawi dedicated to Azeemjah Bahadur of the Carnatic, by Syed Latif Qadiri with the request that he, a Syed, may be taken under his protection and praying for help for his daughter's marriage. The Author, as he himself narrates in this book has travelled vastly throughout India. His command of language is most admirable. Madras till recently, a hundred years back, was the seat of Arabic and Persian learning and its muslim rulers attracted several renowned men of letters.

The author has beautifully described the beauties of the fair sex and the boys of the different places in India chiefly of Delhi, Lucknow and Benares.

Author, Maulana Badruddin Hilali.

A most instructive Mathnawi of ethical and sufistic contents styled صفات العاشقين viz., 'the qualities of lovers' by Maulana Badruddin Hilalî who was put to death by order of Ubaidullah Khan Uzbek at Harât in 939 A.H.=1532, 1533 A.D.

Some tadhkiras fix the poet's death in 936 A.H. = 1529, 1530 A.D. but the former statement is more correct as it is the date given by the Poet's intimate friend Sām Mirzā.

Hilalî wrote another mystical Mathnawi styled Shah-u-gada شاه و گدا or King and dervish which has been translated into German Verse by H. Ethē.

(Refer A. Sprenger p. 427 and Dr. Ette's India Office Catal. of Persian Mss. Nos. 1426 to 1430.)

This Mathnawi is divided into ten chapters or . مقالہ . As the manuscript is worm-eaten the scribe and the date of transcription cannot be found out.

میر اسماعیل خان ابجدی *

This is a very interesting narrative poem by Abjadi who was one of the best Poets in the court of Nawab Walajah. His birth place was Chinglepet. Abjadi's learning and abilities were such that he was appointed a tutor to Nawab Umdatulumra Bahadur. He was a Poet of great Merit and composed poems both in Persian and Urdu. Some of his well known Mathnawis are Haftjauher (در احوال بهرام گور) هفت جوهر Zabdatul Afkar زبدة الافکار and Anwarnama انور نامه. When he presented Anwarnama to Nawab Walajah, the Nawab much pleased with his work had him weighed in silver and gave it to the Poet as a present. The value of this silver amounted to six thousand and seven hundred rupees. He was made the Poet-laureate of the court and was honoured with the coveted title of "Malikush-sh'ora". He died in 1193 A.H., and was buried with due ceremony in the precincts of the Jame Masjid at Mylapore.

Hero of the Poem is Shah Rukh and the heroine is Zarina. They are blessed with a son and named him Humayun. He grows to be a very brave young man and general. His love to Sitra a famous maiden for her superb beauty and the adventures and Humayun's marriage with her are beautifully described.

The poem is interesting throughout. The first page bears the seals of "Muhammad Ali Hussain Khan Tajulumra".

Transcribed in 1197 A.H. Scribe is not mentioned.

Author, Ghulam Aizzuddîn Khan Bahadur Mustaqîm Jang Namî.

This is a most touching love story that ends in a tragedy. It has as a historical background the invasion of Sultan Mahamûd Ghaznavi and is in fact the wellknown story of Chandar Badan Mehyar in verse.

The Poet Ghulam Aizzuddîn Khan Mustaqîm Jang Namî (died 1240 A.H.), has versified this story in a most masterly manner.

For notices on the life and works of Mûstaqîm Jang Namî Refer Tadhkira-i-Gulzar-i-Azam pages 353 to 356 of which there are several copies in this library.

Author, Jalaludindin Rumi.

A very good copy of the famous Mathnaw-i-Mûnawi by Jalaluddin generally known as Maulana Rum and Jalaluddin Rumi. He was born in Balkh in 1207 A.D. (604 A.H.), and died in Iconium 1273 A.D. (672 A.H.). Portions of this Mathnawi have been translated into German in Tholuck's Blüthensammlung Margntand and by G. Rosen Mesnewi oder Doppelverse, Leipzig 1849. The first book was translated into English by J. W. Red House London 1881 (Trübners Oriental Series). The best abridged translation of the whole work was made by E. H. Whinfield a great scholar and published in London 1887.

The present copy was transcribed in 1084 A.H. The first page bears the seals of Sirajuddoula Umdatulmulk; Hafiz Muhammed Munawar Khan, Salar Jang, Madarulmulk; and Muyeenulmulk Bahadur. It is further stated on the same page that the present copy was presented in 1171 A.H., at Nasen Nagar (Arcot) to Moteminalmulk, Yameenuddoula Hassan Ali Khan Bahadur Zulfakhar Jang by Nawab Umdatulmulk Anwaruddin Khan Bahadur. The first daftar has no preface and contains marginal notes on most of the pages.

Author, Muhammad Baqir Āgāh.

Baqir Āgāh belonged to a respectable family of Bijapur that had settled down at Ellore. He was born at Ellore in 1158 A.H. He earned a great fame as a renowned Poet and literary man of his age and Nawab Walajah of Carnatic appointed him a tutor to Ameerulumra Bahadur on Rs. 200 a month. He was also given by the Nawab the village of Allattur as Jahgir. He has left several works in Persian, Arabic and Urdu. He died in 1220 A.H.

This manuscript contains several poetical compositions describing the Crescent by several Poets including Baqir Āgāh's descriptive poem on the subject. There are also some extracts from Tazaki-Timuri and Mathnaw-i-Muhammad Hussain Jaudath. Some select sayings of Aristotle have also been included along with a qasida by Agah in praise of Ameerulumra Nawab Shuja-ul-Mulk. Birth of Jahangir and the attendant events have also been described.

The first page bears a seal that reads Syed Yahya Khan Bahadur Akbar Jung "سید یحیی خان بہادر اکبر جنگ". Scribe and the year of description are not to be found.

Author, Iskander Munshi.

History of Shah Abbas the great and his predecessors in the Safwi line by Iskandar Munshi. Originally it was completed to the year 1616 A.D. (1025 A.H.), but continued afterwards to the death of Abbas and accession of Shah Safi in 1038 A.H. (1629 A.D.) Iskandar Munshi divided his work into a 'Mukhaddima' مقدمه 'a' on the forefathers and predecessors of Shah Abbas and virtues and eminent qualities of the Shah himself; the two Sahifas صحیفه the first containing Abbas' life from his birth to his accession (1571—1588 A.D.), the second the first thirty years of his reign 1588—1616 A.D. He later on added the last thirteen years of his reign (1616 to 1629 A.D.) and subdivided the second Sahifah into two maksads, the first containing the first thirty years to 1025 A.H., the second the remaining years to 1038. The latter is sometimes rarely styled as the third Sahifah. The Khatima which the author had intended to comprise wonderful stories and strange incidents of the time was never completed.

This is a very good copy beginning from the 1st Muksad of the 2nd Sahifah especially the last few pages but a little injured. The first page has been decorated with gold and blue colour. Every page has a similar margin. No date.

A renowned biography of Persian poets who flourished from the end of the 9th century of the Hijrai to the middle of the tenth century by the Prince Sam Mirza son of Shah Ismail, the founder of the Safawi dynasty, who was put to death in 984 A.H.—1576 A.D. This is very valuable asset contains contemporaneous accounts of 664 poets in all. In fact this is a kind of continuation to Daulat Shah's and Nawa'is tadhkiras of poets (described above in this catalogue). This copy does not contain the biographies of the all the 664 poets as the last few pages are wanting. It ends with Fana'i. The last 66 pages do not contain the headings. Apparently the transcriber did not give it a finishing touch.

It is divided into seven chapters (صحف). The first four chapters contain the notices of princes, nobles, wazirs and learned men who occasionally wrote poetry. The fifth chapter deals with professional poets and men distinguished for their eloquence. The sixth contains the account of the Tatars who have written Persian poetry. The seventh chapter is an appendix. The last two chapters i.e., the VI and the VII are wanting in this copy. According to Sprenger these two chapters are short and do not contain more than 34 pages. Refer A. Sprenger Oudh Catalogue. p. 12.

Author, Nuruddin Muhammad Aufi.

A copy of the famous collection of stories and anecdotes, mainly historical, compiled by Nuruddin Muhammed Aufi at the Court of Sultan Abul Muzaffer Altamesh who reigned in Delhi from 1211 to 1236 A.D.—607-633 A.H. This voluminous and interesting book is divided into four kisms each of which contains twenty-five chapters.

First kism treating with :—The knowledge of God.

Second kism :—Good morals.

Third kism :—Bad and blamable conduct.

Fourth kism is devoted to cosmographical matters.

Mohammed Awfi was a native of Marw the capital of Persia under the Seljuq Princes and it can be safely said that he flourished towards the end of the sixth and the beginning of the seventh century A.H. He has left us besides this work his Lubabul Albab لباب الالباب the most ancient Tadkkira as it is generally acknowledged and the first that has been compiled as the author himself boldly asserts. The last pages are missing. Scribe and the date of transcription are not found.

The famous collection of stories and anecdotes compiled in 625 A.H. =1228 A.D., at the Court of Sultan Abū Almuzaffar Altamish (reigned at Delhi 607—633 A.H.=1211—1236 A.D.) by Maulana Nuruddin Muhammad Aufi, the well known author of the oldest tadhkirah Lubābal-albab. It is divided into four quisms each of which contains twenty-five chapters.

(1) Knowledge of God.

(3) Bad conduct.

(2) Good morals.

(4) Cosmographical matters.

A persian translation in 18 parts of the sacred book of the Hindus with an introduction of about 12 pages by Allamah Abul Fadhl. The translation of the book was done under the supervision of a committee of experts—Muslims and Hindus, appointed by the Emperor Akbar in the thirty second year of his reign. The purpose for which the Emperor ordered the translation of this book is told by Abul Fadhl in his introduction in the following words.

چون بدریافت کامل خود نزاع فرایق ملت محمدی و جنود
 ننود بیشتر یافت و انکار یکدیگر زیاده از اندازه معلوم شد خاطر
 نکته دان بران قرار یافت که کتب معتبره طائفین بزبان مخالف
 ترجمه کرده آید تا هر دو فریق ببرکت انفس قدسیه حضرت

Author, Muhammad bin 'Alauddin bin Hibatullah Sabzawari.

محمد بن علاءالدین بن حیدر الله سبزواری

The author compiled this work on persistent request of his friends and has dealt with the subject in a clear manner avoiding all ambiguities. The medical herbs prescribed are mainly indigenous to India and the properties of various medicines are fully explained. Poisons and such of the medical plants that are injurious to health when used indiscriminately and carelessly are altogether excluded and only harmless medicines are substituted for the treatment of several diseases. The book is divided into 14 chapters each dealing with the diseases peculiar to the part of the body as follows :—

- (1) امراض سر Diseases of the head.
- (2) امراض چشم Diseases of the eye.
- (3) امراض گوش Diseases of the ear.
- (4) امراض حلق و دهان Diseases of the throat and the mouth.
- (5) امراض صدر و قلب Diseases of the chest and heart.
- (6) امراض معدة و جگر Diseases of the stomach and liver.
- (7) امراض روده و مقعد Diseases of the intestines.
- (8) امراض كبد و مثانه Kidney and urinal diseases.
- (9) امراض زنان Venereal diseases.
- (10) اوجاع ظهر و خاصرة
- (11) تبها و بھران Fevers.

(12) اورام و بثور Swellings and boils.

(13) مقعہ ضربہ سوختگی اعضاء و جراحات Burns and wounds.

(14) طرد هوام از خانه و گردیدن آنها

The author compiled this work in 871 A.H. Transcribed on the 14th of Shaban 1151 Fasli.

This valuable book on medicine is divided into 368 chapters, each dealing with a particular disease and its treatment. The main feature of the work is that the author does not prescribe any compound medicine or mixture for the diseases. The treatment in all cases is based on the use of single medical herbs, flowers, roots, etc., for external and internal application as the case may be. The author has taken great pain in compiling this unique book on medicine.

The first page bears two seals that read "Imam Hussain" (یا امام حسین) and "Muhammad Ali Hussain Khan Tajulumra" (محمد علی حسین خان تاج الامرا)

Author, Muhammad Mumin Hussaini.

The famous book on Materia Medica compiled on the basis of the Arabic book مالا یسع الطبیب and many other Arabic and Indian treatises on medicine by Muhammed Mumin Hussaini, son of Mir Muhammed Zaman Tanakabuni. It was written with the main purpose of correcting the many errors and inaccuracies in the بدعی under Shah Sulaiman Safwi (1666—1694 A.D.) to whom it is dedicated. The work is divided into two parts. The first containing the five thashkisat (تشخیصات) and the second the dasturat in three kisms of which the last is missing.

FIRST PART.

تشخیص اول در بیان مسبب اختلاف اقوال اطبا در ماهیه و خواص و قدر شربت و شرط اخذ آن - الخ

Reasons for the difference of opinion among the physicians respecting their experiences, peculiarities and quantity of doses.

تشخیص ثانی در ذکر صفات ادویه مفردة و اغذیه مفردة و مرکبه *

SECOND PART.

قسم اول در بیان اعمالی که متعلق است بادویه مفردة
(پنچ طریق)

Use of simple drugs.

قسم ثانی در بیان اعیان که متعلق است بادویه مرکبه (بست و چهار باب) *

Application and use of compound medicines (in twenty-four chapters).

The third kism is wanting. It deals with the treatment of different diseases as mentioned in the introduction.

Author, Fatah Ali usually known as Ali Hussain Gurdezi.

This is a useful tadhkira of rikhta poets by Gurdezi compiled at Delhi in 1165. Ali Hussain Gurdezi was a great Sufi. He was induced to compile this tazkira as there was no such book worth the name at that time except Meer's tazkira which was also not exhaustive. On the whole this small tazhkira contains the biographies of hundred poets. It is written in Persian. Most of the pages are worm-eaten but still it is in a fairly readable condition.

Pages, 445. Lines, on a page 19. Language, Persian. Condition, the pages are mostly detached from the marginal lines. Mode of writing, very good. Appearance, very old.

Subject, memoranda of poets.

Extent, ...

Author, Dawlat Shah bin Alauddawlah Bakhti Shah.

A well known and most useful tazkira of poets by Dawlat Shah a contemporary of the celebrated Jami and a cousin of Amîr Ferûz Isfaryî. Dawlat Shah completed this work—which apart from the biographies of poets contains valuable historical details—in 892 A.H., and dedicated it to Wazîr Mir Ali Shir who was himself a poet and a great patron of learning.

It is divided into a preface مقدمہ, seven chapters طبقات, and a conclusion خاتمہ. The preface contains the notices of nine Arabic poets. Each of the seven chapters consists of about twenty biographies and the conclusion deals with the lives and works of the six important poets that flourished during the author's lifetime.

Modern research scholars like Prof. E. G. Browne have pointed out that in point of historical accuracy Dawlat Shah has gone astray in very many places. He has presented to us the material as he collected without sifting it carefully. The manuscript is very old, the first page has a beautifully decorated 'unwan in blue and gold colour.' All the pages have gold and blue marginal lines.

Author, rendered into Persian by Munshi Abdul Baqi Sharif Radhawi (original author Ali Shêr Nawai).

This is a Persian translation of Ali Shîr Nawai's famous and rare biography of Persian poets composed in 896 A.H. = 1491 A.D.

The original work was in the Turkish language and on the request of Nawwab Ghulam Ghouse Khan, the Nawwab of the Carnatic, Munshi Abdul Baqi Sharif Radhvi a great literary and noble man of the Nawwab's Court, who was well versed in the Turkish language rendered it into Persian.

The translator's preface extends to twenty-three pages in which he briefly speaks of his Arab ancestors that held responsible offices during the rule of Zindiah Sultans and also deals with the peculiarities of the Turkish language and the events that lead to his translation of this work.

The following is an extract from the preface, p. 12 :—

اگر چه مسقط الراس و نشو و نماي عاصي بعد از ترک خدمت
وزرتش والد بزرگوار در عهد سلاطين زنديه و اقامتشان بعربستان
در دارالسلام بغداد اتفاق افتاد همواره از بدو شعور بزبان ترکي
مروجئه آن بلده معموره که ترکي اهل روم حال که اسلام يول باشد
واقف و متکلم بوده است *

Another translation of this work by Fakir of Herat (the author of the Jawahirulajaib جواهرالعجايب entitled لطائف نامه composed about 927 A.H. = 1521 A.D., is described in Rieu. i. p. 366. A later Persian version by Shah Ali is also mentioned in Rieu. Turkish catal. p. 274.

Mir Ali Shîr died in 906 A.H. = 1501 A.D.

The work is divided into eight majâlis :—

(1) Poets who died in the author's life time but were not personally known to him beginning with Qasim-i-Anwar.

(2) Contemporary poets known to him personally but who died before the composition of this work, i.e. 896 A.H., beginning with Sharfuddin Ali Yazdi.

(3) Contemporary poets and Shaikhs personally known to him and alive at the time of the composition of this work, beginning with Jami.

(4) Fudhala or men of letters who occasionally composed verses beginning with Pehlawan Muhammad.

(5) Noble men of Khurāsān who excelled in poetical compositions, beginning with Dawlat Shah.

(6) Poets and ingenious men of other countries beginning with Ahmed Hajibeg.

(7) Poetry and witticisms of Sultans and Princes beginning with Amir Timur Gûrgan.

(8) Sayings in prose and verse of Nawaf's Patron Sultan Hussain, who reigned from 873-911 A.H. = 1469-1506 A.D.

This is a very rare and valuable manuscript still unpublished.

For original Turkish copies refer Rieu. Turkish Catal. p. 273
W. Pertsch Berlin Turkish Catal. p. 313, Paris Catal. pp. 297, 331 and 333.

Apparently this manuscript is an autograph of the translator.

Transcribed in 1242. A.H.

After the introduction the original translation begins on p. 24.
